

LEADERSHIP FIGHTS RAGE IN CONGRESS

Two fights over House organization commanded attention in Congressional circles today. They are the contests over the Republican and Democratic leaderships, the latter centering about Speaker Clark.

The war on Speaker Clark promises to become bitter and spectacular. It involves big Democratic politics. It is well known that Clark will be a candidate for President in 1920, and if his opponents can keep him out of the minority leadership he will be put out of business as a Presidential candidate.

The effort to beat Clark, therefore, finds encouragement in quarters friendly to other Democratic Presidential candidates, and among a number of the Administration Democrats.

Opposition Gains Strength

It is based, at least in large part, on the fact that the Speaker has repeatedly refused to align himself for Administration policies. The opposition to Mr. Clark lays claim to more than a third of the Democratic strength in the new House.

The main on whom the opposition to Clark will probably center for the leadership is Rainey of Illinois, a member of the Ways and Means Committee.

Mann, Republican Whirlpool

In the Republican camp, the only serious controversy thus far developed is over the leadership. Unless this is settled by putting Mann in for leader, temporarily, it looks as if there would be a sharp struggle between Moore of Pennsylvania and the House will stand by the Speaker, including Claude Kitchin, chairman of Ways and Means and majority leader in the Congress just ended.

Moore, who is a Mann adherent, has many supporters, but Western members are beginning to protest strongly against the idea of making Gillett, a Massachusetts man, Speaker, and on top of that making a Pennsylvania man, leader. They say this would give the East a predominance that would be ruinous to politics, especially when it is considered that Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania will head the Senate Finance Committee. Moreover, the opponents of Moore criticize his war record.

May Be Trouble in Caucus

Under the circumstances, there is trouble ahead in the caucus if Moore is chosen leader and the selection of Mann as leader, at least, temporarily, may be the solution.

While there is much talk that nine of the chairmen of the House committees will be Mann men, the fact is that the adoption of the seniority rule works out to the advantage of a lot of Gillett men. Thus, the most powerful chairmanship in the House, Appropriations, goes to Good, a Gillett leader. Moreover Gillett men will get important committee chairmanships or positions on various other committees outside the ten principal ones. Some of these others are going to be important in the new Congress. The support for the seniority rule among the Mann men, whether Mann or Gillett men, in fact, is so strong the caucus is not likely to change it and, the Committee on Committee is actually placing men with the object of preventing a serious controversy in caucus.

FAINT HOPE OF EXTRA SESSION

There is a lurking hope among some members of Congress still in Washington that the extra session may yet be called before the President's return, they said today.

Those who expressed this hope based it on what they called the frantic state of mind of railroad men, left in the lurch by the Senate's failure to provide the $750,000,000 badly needed by the Railroad Administration. They said the strongest pressure will be brought to bear on the President from this source to get Congress back at work before serious trouble occurs.

Democratic leaders scoffed at this, declaring they knew the President had foreseen all possible consequences of his refusal, and that he would not be moved by anything short of disaster.

Meantime, after a bitter fight, the conference of governors and mayors here is on record against any move to demand an extra session of Congress. Mayor Rolph of San Francisco, exchanged heated words with Governor Cox of Ohio when the former's resolution demanding that President Wilson call an extra session to pass appropriation bills was reported unfavorably by the committee on resolutions of which Cox was chairman.

G. W. U. PAYS TRIBUTE TO BRAZILIAN POET

The Portuguese class at George Washington University has the distinction of being the first organization in the United States to pay formal tribute to the memory of Olavo Bilac, newspaperman and "prince of Brazilian poets," who died in Rio de Janeiro on December 28.

Dr. J. de Siqueira Coutinho, professor in charge of the class, opened the exercises by briefly reviewing Brazilian poetry and by discussing in detail the works of Bilac, later reading choice selections from his writings.

W. P. Montgomery, LL. M., who was a friend of Bilac, read a sketch on the poet.

Bilac was born in Rio de Janeiro in 1865, and was fifty-three years old at the time of his death. One of his most cherished poems was "Hymn to the Flag."
